SOFTER WATER - REDUCED SURFACE TENSION - REDUCED HARDNESS

HUMANS AND ANIMALS

Softer water is sensed and measured in structured water due to the increased and more homogeneous molecular organization. Significant reductions have been measured in control testing with the “floating ring method”, whereas the optical tensiometer methods due not show the results. (it is theorized the metal interfaces disrupt the charge state of the water in the manner the instrument works). Reduced hardness is attributed also to the change in structure of substances within the water. Increased absorption that results from structured water has been witnessed at the cellular level, also attributing to overall increased health, better hydration, less irritating effects from Chlorine while drinking and showering. Sunburn not agitated by normal “hot” water.

PLANTS

More absorption leads to increased brix and overall nutrient levels in plants along with reduced water consumption

2. UNIVERSITY OF SANTA CRUZ CALIFORNIA – DR. CARLEY CORRODO:

Potassium uptake is correlated to fruit number and size and is also one of the leading causes of nutrient lock. Tests were performed with numerous fertilizers with high potassium and in all cases the NAT SW generators showed increased potassium uptake witnessed by flower numbers over three types of fertilizers. NOTES: There are some 'statements of use' and limited testing regarding trials with certain therapies as 'structured water enhanced' by third party articles and research. We have some testimony in this direction. The correlation needs to be made through testimony. (Noting that functional, activated, levitated, charged water, and double helix water are all indicating structured water, and all seem to have fairly similar results in certain situations including human trials and testimonies). These suggestions are supported by articles and books, and compared in TSP'S, (SOFTER WATER AND REDUCED SURFACE TENSION, INCREASED ABSORPTION) and information correlates by NAT direct pics and tests.
